To Scopus Title Evaluation Support Team
Elsevier B.V.

Dear Scopus Title Evaluation Support Team,

We hope this letter finds you well. On behalf of the Editorial Board of Senarai: Journal of Islamic Heritage and Civilization, we would like to express our sincere appreciation for the preliminary assessment of our journal during the previous title submission process. We greatly value the time and effort dedicated by the Scopus Title Evaluation Support Team in reviewing journal applications and providing constructive administrative feedback.

This cover letter accompanies the resubmission of our journal following the outcome of our previous application under Reference Number BF17463878776400, which was marked "Not accepted for review" with the following comment: "Title is lacking a dedicated website with information relevant for review."

We fully acknowledge this observation and regarded it as an opportunity further to strengthen our journal's digital presence and transparency. Although our journal website already contained the essential information supporting our editorial and publishing activities, we conducted a comprehensive review to identify any technical, structural, or informational factors that might have affected its accessibility or visibility during the administrative screening process. Following this review, our editorial and technical teams implemented a series of improvements intended to ensure that the journal website is fully accessible, informative, and aligned with internationally recognized publishing practices.

The improvements include:

1. Conducting a comprehensive audit of the journal website to evaluate the completeness, organization, and accessibility of information relevant to title evaluation.
2. Improving website infrastructure and server configuration to enhance stability and international accessibility.
3. Reviewing and strengthening firewall and security configurations to ensure that legitimate international access, including access by indexing and evaluation teams, is not inadvertently restricted.
4. Reviewing and updating editorial policies, publication ethics, publisher information, governance, and other key journal documentation to improve transparency and ease of navigation.
5. Performing repeated accessibility verification from different international networks to confirm that all essential pages remain consistently available

For your convenience, we respectfully provide direct access to several principal pages of our journal:

Journal Homepage

Publisher Information

<https://yayasan.tunasharapanummat.or.id/about-us/research-and-academic>

Publication Ethics

<https://tunasharapanummat.or.id/index.php/senarai/publicationethic>

These pages provide comprehensive information regarding the journal's editorial management, publishing policies, ethical standards, publisher profile, and institutional governance. Each page has been carefully reviewed and refined following the previous administrative screening to ensure that all relevant information is presented clearly and can be accessed without restriction.

One of our principal concerns throughout this process has been to ensure that no temporary technical limitation or website accessibility issue could unintentionally influence future administrative assessments. For this reason, we have devoted considerable effort to improving both the technical reliability of our platform and the completeness of the information available to reviewers.

With these improvements now in place, we respectfully submit our journal for consideration once again. We sincerely hope that the enhancements implemented will facilitate a smooth administrative screening and enable the journal to proceed to the next stage of the Scopus title evaluation process.

Our Editorial Board remains firmly committed to maintaining high standards of scholarly publishing, editorial independence, publication ethics, digital accessibility, and continuous quality improvement. We highly value the Scopus evaluation process as an important benchmark for academic excellence and remain dedicated to meeting its expectations.

Should any additional information, documentation, or technical verification be required, we would be grateful for the opportunity to provide it promptly.

Thank you for your time, consideration, and the valuable work of the Scopus Title Evaluation Support Team. We sincerely appreciate your attention to our resubmission and look forward to your kind consideration.

Yours faithfully,

Mohammad Irfan F. Haecal
